Files

- `carmelph.co.il--product-gilgamesh.raw.html` / `carmel-page--blurb-sample-toc.rtl.md`: publisher page (blurb, translators' preface, vocalized sample of Tablet I ll. 1 ff., TOC).
- `ynet--Tesler-2026--interview.raw.html` / `ynet-article.rtl.md`: ynet article with Cohen & Wasserman on the translation, Tablet XI and the Bible, and Tchernichovsky's and Shifra–Klein's earlier versions.

Line numbering

The sample shows numbered lines ("1 (מִי) מַעֲמַקִּים רָאָה..."). The translators say they edited the Akkadian themselves on the basis of George 2003 plus all fragments published since. Expect George/eBL numbering (to be verified with the book).

Name forms (from publisher page/blurb)

אותנפישתי (Ūta-napišti, without final ־ם), אתרחסיס (Atra-ḫasīs), גילגמש, אנכידו, חומבבה, אורוך (Uruk), שַׁמְחָת (Šamḫat), אנו, שִׁידורי (Šiduri), האאנה, נינסון, שמש (Eanna).

Assessment

Most important comparison text for this project. It is the first Hebrew translation made by Israeli Assyriologists directly from an up-to-date Akkadian text (Wasserman also edited The Flood: The Akkadian Sources, 2020, which is saved separately in `../Wasserman-2020--The-Flood-Akkadian-Sources/`). The register is deliberately contemporary Hebrew ("העברית שלנו כיום"), not pseudo-biblical, and vocalized. It is the best source for current Israeli Assyriological Hebrew name spellings. Recommended purchase: the ₪26 e-book is the cheapest.
