[o 1] Come in, shepherd, Ištar’s lover, | Spend the night here, shepherd, Ištar’s lover,
[o 3] At your entering, my father is happy for you,
[o 4] my mother, Ningal, is rejoiced over you. | She served you oil in a bowl.
[o 6] At your entering, the bolts rejoice over you,
[o 7] the door itself shall be opened [for you]! | You, wooden bolt – what do you know?
[o 9] What do you know? The entrance of my darling! | Indeed, I love, I love, oh, lusty one.
[o 11] He freed his dogs ... | (saying:) "Let me come in front of Ningal!"
[o 13] After her bride entered in front of Ningal, | they divided the sweet cake in the bowl.
[o 15] The illustrious one is worried about the dogs and shepherds.
[o 16] - Why are they insulting (him)? He brought and offered.
[o 17] He went and came back, he brought and offered,
[o 18] Yes, the illustrious one is worried about the shepherds’ affluence.
[o 19] The company is well, the king is well, | Dumuzi is well, Ištar’s lover.
[o 21] [... loosen,] loosen your sandals! | [...] unpack your nets!
[o 23] [...] we shall eat, oh, lusty one! | [...] oh, lusty one! | [...] he refuses, he won’t bring.
[o 26] [...] we shall eat, oh, lusty one! | [...] we shall sprinkle! | [...]oh, lusty one!
[o 29] [...] the cry of your flock,
[r 30] [...] your lambs, | [...] the cry of your flock, | [...] neglect(?) our sheepfold!
[r 33] Recite for me [his name/number], he wouldn’t let (it) go! | [...]
[r 35] Recite for me his name/number, he wouldn’t let (it) go!
[r 36] Ištar went into his sheepfold, | opened her mouth and said to him:
[r 38] "How sweet is the water, the water of your sheepfold!
[r 39] your water murmurs, It is the water of (your) animal stall!"
[r 40] 'I shall sing on the heroic shepherd.' | Total 39 lines. | Series: 'O darling loving me.'
[r 43] Library tablet of Taqšītum, son of Meme-Enlil, administrator of the temple of Ištar.
