Round 5 run 3 (2026-10-31): the epics and the rituals 5

Created 2026-10-23 by Round 4, run 1 (`../curated-translation-candidates.md`, "Round 4 plan"; the world list `../curated-translation-candidates--world.md`, Tier 1 #1 and §5A). The folder's first non-Mesopotamian corpus, and its first Ugaritic. It holds the mythological texts of Ugarit (Ras Shamra, on the Syrian coast; tablets of the late 13th century BCE): the Baal Cycle, copied by the scribe Ilimilku, and the short myths, hymns and charms. Later candidates in the same language ("Ugarit II": Aqhat, the Rephaim texts, Kirta; "Ugarit III": the ritual texts; the letters) would join it, after checking Göttingen's EUPT edition.

Why these texts (both purposes, guidelines §1)

- The Bible. Ugarit is the closest literature to the Bible's own: the same poetic pairs, the same divine names (El, Baal, Anat, Athirat / Asherah, Resheph, Dagan, Yam, Mot), and the monsters of the sea that Gen 1:21 makes into creatures: tnn (תַּנִּין), ltn (לִוְיָתָן), the twisting bṯn (Isa 27:1). The commentary is writing Gen 1:20–23 now. Beyond the fifth day: Baal's window in the clouds and the "windows of the sky" (Gen 7:11, 8:2), El at the source of the two rivers (Gen 2:10), the seventy sons of Athirat (Gen 10; Deut 32:8), El drunk and carried home (Gen 9:20–27), the mourning rites the Torah forbids (Lev 19:27–28; Deut 14:1), Rapiʾu in Ashtaroth and Edrei (Deut 1:4, 3:11), Ex 15's mountain of inheritance.

- The ancient mind. How a Levantine city imagined the rain and its absence (Baal's death and return), kingship won and a palace built, the old father-god and the young king, a fierce maiden goddess, death as a throat that is never full; the feast, the drunken god, the haggling over a bride-price, a mare's plea for her bitten foal, the dead kings invited to drink.

How the parts relate

The Baal Cycle tells how Baal, the storm god, became king: his fight with Yam (Sea) / Nahar (River) (1.1–1.2), Anat's feast, slaughter and boast of the monsters she smote (1.3), the building of his palace with its window (1.3–1.4), his descent into the throat of Mot (Death) and the mourning of El and Anat (1.4 VIII–1.5), Anat's destruction of Mot, Baal's return and the last fight (1.6), and a hymn to Šapšu with the sea monsters (1.6 VI). The short texts share its gods, formulas and epithets (El's banquet, the tnn charms, the "birds of heaven and fish of the sea" of 1.23). Reading order: 1.1 → 1.6, then the short texts; for the fifth day: 1.3 III 38–46, 1.5 I 1–8, 1.6 VI 44–53, 1.83, 1.82, 1.23:58–64.

Tools and files

- `ugarit_tools.py` (in this folder): `units`, `data`, `fill`, `pars`, `lex`, `dulat`, `eupt` (Kirta), `verify [--strict]`, `build`, `grep [--all]`, `gates`, `selftest`. It reads CUC through `../tools/cuc2md.py` (the converter from CUC's Text-Fabric dataset). See its docstring and `../tools.md`.
- `renderings.md` binds every translator; `translator-brief--ugaritic.md` is the common brief.
- `parallels-index.md`: generated from the annotated הקבלה bullets by `build_parallels_index.py`.

Round 5 run 3 (2026-10-31): the epics and the rituals

Read after the cycle: Aqhat (1.17 → 1.19), then the Rephaim texts (1.20–1.22: Danel again, inviting the dead kings), then 1.161 (the Rephaim in the royal cult); Kirta (1.14 → 1.16) stands alone (its scribe is Ilimilku too); the rituals show the cult the myths presuppose. Left for later: the rest of 1.39–1.148 (1.41 / 1.87 the month of the first wine, 1.43, 1.46 …), the letters, the other Rephaim-related texts (1.113 the king list); EUPT's editions of Aqhat and the Rephaim when they appear (re-check the readings then).
