John Day, "המקור המסופוטמי לסיפור המבול המקראי" (TheTorah.co.il, 2021)

- Author: Prof. John Day (Oxford). Hebrew translation (by "ALE") of "The Mesopotamian Origin of the Biblical Flood Story", TheTorah.com, Oct 2020. Hebrew version published 4 Oct 2021.
- URL: https://thetorah.co.il/article/the-mesopotamian-origin-of-the-biblical-flood-story
- Retrieved: 2026-10-16
- License / copyright: COPYRIGHTED (TheTorah / Project TABS). Saved for private research only.

Files

- `thetorah.co.il--mesopotamian-origin-of-biblical-flood.raw.html`: raw page.
- `article.rtl.md`: clean article text with footnotes.

Contents

Day argues that Genesis (both J and P) depends on Atrahasis rather than on Gilgamesh XI. He compares Berossus, the Sumerian flood story and Gilgamesh XI (bird scene; XI 49 and 197 "Atra-hasis"). Editor's notes point to the two Hebrew versions of the epic: Shifra & Klein 1996 and Uri Gabbay & Tamar Weiss, המיתולוגיה הבבלית (Tel Aviv: Mapa, 2003). The Atrahasis quotation in the article is from Gabbay–Weiss p. 28.

Name forms (Hebrew article, not by an Assyriologist)

אַתְרַחַסִיס, זיאוסודרה, אורוק, אוּתְנַפִּישְׁתִים / אותנפישתים, אֲאָה (= אֶנכִי), אֶנליל, הר נימוש (formerly ניסיר).

Assessment

A good, up-to-date short synthesis of the Genesis–Mesopotamia question in Hebrew, useful for commentary framing. It is not a translation of Tablet XI.