Mitchell 1974 — "Old Testament Archaeology: Some Recent Work" (Atrahasis section)

- Citation: T. C. Mitchell, "Old Testament Archaeology: Some Recent Work," Faith and Thought 101/2 (1974): 142–158 (a paper read to the Victoria Institute, 2 Feb 1974).
- URL: https://gospelstudies.org.uk/biblicalstudies/pdf/ft/101-2_142.pdf (biblicalstudies.org.uk mirror)
- Retrieved: 2026-10-16
- Access basis: Free on biblicalstudies.org.uk / gospelstudies.org.uk, with permission of the Victoria Institute.

Relevance: The opening section (Atrahasis) is a short survey by a British Museum curator. It covers the Atrahasis epic, its plague → famine → drought → flood structure, the seven-day warning, and its relation to Gilgamesh XI, which Mitchell judges to be "largely the source" of Gilgamesh XI, and to Genesis. Only the first pages are relevant.